Welcome

Dear Neighbours, welcome to the Autumn issue of Burpham Pages. I hope you've had a great summer and enjoyed some relaxing holiday time.

We've had a busy time with Burpham Pages, as since the last issue the magazine has had a re-design. We hope that the new look magazine is something you'll want to keep for a little longer on your coffee table to read our editorials in quieter moments, or by your telephone for when you next need to call upon the services of our local advertisers.

We're continuing to try and make our content as relevant as possible to Burpham and Jacobs Well residents and where possible are starting to include small news snippets and details of upcoming events in our 'News & events' section. If you have anything that you would like included in our next issue (November & December 2018) please feel free to get in touch and e-mail the details to editor@burpham-pages.co.uk

In the new year, in line with the magazine re-design, we'll be launching our new website so readers will have an online resource to all of our content with back issues of the magazine uploaded for reference and our social media channels will gain some momentum too.

So, as we enjoy the last of the summer and head in to Autumn with it's fresher mornings I do hope you are looking forward to what the new season has to offer.

As always, we want to thank both our advertisers and readers for their continued support and for being part of a truly local magazine for Burpham and Jacobs Well.

Why am I left in the waiting room?

by Jennifer Margrave

Why are relatives not allowed to sit in when solicitors see their older relatives to discuss legal points? Surely the son or daughter can assist with information and background facts?

There are two main reasons why solicitors need to see a person on their own.

One is that we need to make sure we establish who our client is. Sounds simple, but if a child starts to ask questions about inheritance tax are we giving that child advice or the parent? The second point is that quite often what the younger generation think is a good idea may not be what the older person wants so there is a conflict of interest between the child and the parent – or the aunt and niece or any other situation where a younger person accompanies an older relative to a lawyer's office.

The most common situation where this can occur is where a younger person explains that the older relative wants to give their property to the younger generation. Alarm bells always ring at this and once we see the older person on their own it can be quite a different story. As lawyers we have a duty of diligence and confidentiality to that older person and, once we explain the dangers of carrying out such a step, they usually decide not to go ahead with the idea. Of course, the younger relative might be upset by the change of heart, but our duty is to the client – the older person, who would be carrying out the legal steps.

There are other reasons why we need to see the older person on their own. It is a sad fact that many people don't think about wills, powers of attorney or other legal actions, until it becomes necessary. Very often it is only when an older person starts to exhibit signs of dementia that questions are raised about wills or power of attorney. It is the duty of a solicitor to ensure that the client fully understands the implications of these legal processes, so we have to assess the mental capacity of that person, and if a relative is in the room, that relative can 'assist' by answering questions and the assessment can be very difficult.

A word of assurance in this respect; just because a person has been diagnosed with dementia does not mean they are unable to take decisions or give instructions, for a will, for instance. Quite often they will still 'know their own mind' about their testamentary wishes and can give adequate instructions.

But we as lawyers have to be wary; supposing a disappointed relative claims the person did not have capacity when the will is produced, after death? Then it is important we have made the right assessment and recorded adequately how we assessed that person, to ensure the will they made will 'stand up in court', and seeing them on their own is the first step, i.e. there was no-one else who was unduly influencing them.

So, next time you are asked to wait outside, don't take offence; we are just doing our job.

SHARING THE GOOD NEWS OF JESUS

Living the dream

What is your current dream in life? A better job, to own your house, to lose weight, get a new car, some new clothes, a relationship, better health... or have you stopped dreaming?

On 8th September I hope to be fulfilling my 2 year dream to run a marathon up a mountain in Switzerland!

To be honest when I reached 50 I had started to have fewer dreams and just got on with life, taking it one day at a time! Maybe I had failed too many times or just got pragmatic about every day's challenges! Then a doctor warned me "men without dreams are much more likely to get depression", so I finally started running.

The first year I failed to get far, quickly getting an injury, but the second year I finally got my act together, lost 3 stone and started training. I have run 1000 miles this year and completed many races already.

How did I deal with my fear of failure and my inability to lose weight (even though like everyone I do know how; eat less and exercise!)? So often we are told to "look inside yourself", or to "be strong", or to "try this diet" or "that exercise".

"On 8th September I hope to be fulfilling my 2 year dream to run a marathon up a mountain in Switzerland!"

Rev James Levasier

If you are a strong and self-disciplined person in the rest of your life that's fine, but the truth is, I have looked inside myself and have failed a lot and I know

I am really not a strong self-disciplined person! For me, it was all about God.

And even if you do not share my faith in God, He can be a strength when you have none. You just have to start talking to Him (we call that prayer) and ask Him for help.

Then you can start dreaming again! But note, God gives us what we need but not always what we want!

Every blessing
Rev James Levasier

Moira MacQuaide Hall's history of Burpham

A mill at Burpham

The earliest examples of watermills date from the Romano-British period, so it is possible that there was a mill here that early, but the Domesday Book records that there was a mill, valued at 15 shillings, in Burpham in 1086AD, one of over 5,000 recorded around the country.

Reconstruction of an Anglo-Saxon watermill

Of course, it may not have been in exactly the same spot, as the Wey Navigation wasn't built until the 1650s, but the ancient mill would have been by the original river. The mill would have belonged to the Lord of the Manor and villagers were required to grind their corn there, paying a toll to the Lord.

The 1838 Tithe Map showing Bowers Mills

The mill first appeared on a map in 1729 by John Senex, marked as a paper-mill. Some documentation suggests that there were two mills in Burpham, one for corn and one for paper, and certainly the Tithe Map of 1838 clearly says Bowers Mills, but it isn't clear whether it was one building or two.

It seems that papermaking in Burpham died out by the late 1790s and, although there was a brief period of producing linseed oil, by the 1830s it had reverted to being a corn mill.

"Some documentation suggests that there were two mills in Burpham, one for corn and one for paper..."

By the 1890s, with Robert Ranger as miller, new machinery was installed, but by 1910 milling had ceased in Burpham. Watermills were generally at least three storeys tall, with a hoist to raise the corn to the top, the millstones on the middle floor and the ground flour collected on the lower floor.

Bowers Mill c. 1900

The mill, mill house and mill lodge were bought by the Duke of Sutherland in the early 20th century. The mill itself was demolished in about 1945, with all the timber being relocated to Sutton Place, and a new building was erected, to be used as a laundry for his estate.

Apparently, when the Duke and his family were at their house in Scotland, their washing was sent by train down to Burpham and then back up again. Bower's Mill is now a residential home – a lovely building by the river, with Bower's Mill House next door.

If you are willing to share your memories and/or photos to tell us more about Burpham then please contact Moira MacQuaide Hall, either by e-mail (moira.macquaide@gmail.com) or by phone or text (07963 756543). My two books ('The History of Burpham Primary School' and 'Burpham – A Gateway to Guildford') are still available from me for £10 (free delivery locally) or on Amazon.

Welcome to the Burpham Community Association

Community Update

How do you see Burpham?

Do you think of it as a village or just part of Guildford's urban sprawl? Is it your community or just somewhere you live?

If you investigate the word "community" you have to start with Latin – communitatem, meaning a sense of fellowship and communis meaning common, as in things shared. Both definitions are integrated in the interpretations of community, for example:

A community is a small or large social unit that has something in common. Communities often share a sense of place. Communities are interacting people sharing an environment.

When the BCA was formed in 1973, the term community association was used, rather than the more usual residents' association. It emphasised precisely a sense of sharing and belonging. This year sees the 45th anniversary of the BCA – our sapphire anniversary. Will there be a golden celebration? That very much depends on you. In last month's Burpham Pages we explained the requirement for more residents to come forward and help in various ways. The need is still there. There will be an Extraordinary General Meeting on October 15th – details opposite – at which we hope to be able to form a new committee to help steer Burpham through the perils of the Local Plan. If we cannot achieve the necessary numbers, then the BCA faces closure.

A link to the past

All communities start from small beginnings; Burpham has grown from the tiny hamlet mentioned in the Domesday Book to a village of some 2,500 dwellings. Most are post-war but there are a few that remind us of our roots – the New Inn Lane surgery, Marlyn's Cottage, Pimm's Row, St Luke's Church and this familiar hostelry.

The Anchor and Horseshoes is thought to have originally been built in the 17th or early 18th century and records show it has operated as a pub from 1785 onwards. (Moir MacQuaide Hall, Burpham- A Gateway to Guildford, 2017).

For many of us, the pub is the heart of community life, and as the Anchor and Horseshoes is now the only one remaining in Burpham, it provides residents with the opportunity to meet people from all walks of life, make new friends and enjoy a comfortable and historic environment.

If the pub were to close and the land be developed for housing, it would be a sad loss for the community. So the Anchor and Horseshoes is being nominated as an Asset of Community Value (ACV). This would designate it as important to the local community and subject to additional protection from development. The BCA and the Burpham Neighbourhood Forum both support this nomination. Others wishing to add their support by giving personal reasons for valuing this pub, should contact the Secretary.

Home-Start Guildford is looking for new volunteers...

Home-Start Guildford is a family support charity covering the whole of the Guildford Borough plus Bookham and Fetcham in Mole Valley. We provide home-visiting volunteers with parenting experience to support families who are struggling to cope with at least one child under five. Examples of difficulties might be: post-natal depression, illness/disability (of parent or child), multiple births, family breakdown, and financial worries.

We believe that parents are key in creating a secure and happy environment for their children. They may need emotional or practical support to give their children the best possible start in life. That's where we come in - and you could too!

- Can you spare a few hours each week to help a family with young children?
- Are you interested in learning new skills on our friendly, free, volunteer training course?

Parents supporting other parents
- a simple idea that really works.

www.hsguildford.org.uk Registered Charity 1154609

Our next Volunteer Preparation Course starts in September 2018, and we are recruiting now!

Are you interested in volunteering?

Please call Debbie or Liz on 01483 511181, or email office@hsguildford.org.uk for more info.

Back to school: Tips from the Chiropractor

Philip J Hehir DC MSc MRCC

There are 190 teaching days in a typical school year. That's a potential of 1,330 hours per annum that our children will spend sitting, whether that be at their desk or on the floor in an assembly hall.

Poor sitting position can wreak havoc on our developing children's spines; potentially affecting blood flow to their inquisitive brains and cause fatigue, which isn't all too ideal in a learning environment!

When parents bring their children in to see us, it's not uncommon to see them begin to develop the early signs of a slouched posture - where the spine develops a sort of C-shape (think of a curvy croissant). The C-shape slouch is not an ideal position for the spine as it induces additional compressive loads into the shock absorbing discs that lie in between the vertebrae. It can also reduce the elevating and depressing efficiency of the diaphragm - a powerful muscle at the base of the rib cage which helps regulate pressure within the lungs. This in turn can diminish oxygen absorption leading to premature fatigue; and the recruitment of our 'accessory' shoulder muscles, which are usually only called upon during intense exercise. Shoulder breathing results in tension within the associated muscles and can often lead to headaches. All of this, doesn't make good for absorbing knowledge.

The spine has a natural S-shape configuration which provides plenty of shock absorbance and efficient muscle activity. Encouraging a posture which is congruent with the natural shape of the spine means it can work at its best. Don't be fooled into thinking however an over-the-top bolted upright posture will be better either mind - in fact it can be just as unnatural as the C-shape.

I often teach youngsters how to work on their S-shape. They do this by finding their 'spinal neutral'. That is, whilst sitting, I tell them to slouch as far they can, after that I tell them to arch their back as far they can by rocking the pelvis forward. The point half way between these two is your spinal neutral. In most cases, this is where the spine has sound curvatures.

In addition to this, the best advice we can give is to ensure your child keeps moving throughout the day. During lunch breaks, they must absolutely get up and move and around

- keeping the sitting down to a minimum. When in class, if at all possible, get up and down every 40 minutes or so. Regularly switching from sitting to standing will ease the effects of the sedentary school day.

And then there's the topic of school bags: that's a discussion for another time!

If you would like further advice on your child's posture, please contact Clinic reception. We offer a free 15-minute consultation with one of our chiropractors to answer any questions you may have.

Burpham Gardening Club News

To join the club or our meetings call John Boon on 01483 874123

Thank you to everyone who scraped around their parched gardens to find exhibits for the Summer Show, congratulations to all the prize winners especially Morriss Kemp winner of the Ted Crump Rosebowl and the Howard Plate and Gill Buiszard winner of the Ireland Trophy and the Teresa Hunt Trophy.

We now look forward to the Autumn show on Saturday September 1st. The Trading Hut will reopen on Sunday September 2nd. Our first meeting of the Winter season will be on Tuesday 23rd October at 7.30pm in the Village Hall when Derek Dexter will be advising us on how to grow Fuchsias.

Things to do in the garden in September

- ✂ On dry sunny days seed from Annuals such as Alyssum, French Marigold and Tagetes can be collected for sowing next Spring, do not collect the seed of F1 Hybrids as the new plants will not be the same as the originals.
- ✂ Continue to deadhead the flower border so that it will stay in bloom until the first frost. To produce good blooms Dahlias need to be fed with a high potash liquid feed once a fortnight.
- ✂ Cuttings of Fuchsia and Pelargonium can still be taken.
- ✂ Keep Camellias and Rhododendrons well watered to ensure good bud

- formation for flowering next Spring.
- ✂ Evergreen Hedges should be given a final trim before Winter.
- ✂ Daffodils and Narcissi should be planted this month or next for a good Spring display.
- ✂ A late sowing of Spinach and Turnip can still be made.

The evenings are now drawing in and Autumn is upon us so enjoy your garden whilst it is still at its peak.

- ✂ Plant out overwintering Onion Sets and Spring Cabbage, Main Crop Potatoes should be lifted and stored.
- ✂ Cut out the fruited canes of Loganberry and Raspberry.
- ✂ Apply an Autumn Dressing to the Lawn when rain is forecast

Things to do in the garden in October

- ✂ All tender plants and shrubs should be brought indoors at the first sign of frost and kept in a frost free place.

- ✂ Cut back and divide Herbaceous Perennials.
- ✂ Dahlias should be lifted and stored once they have been blackened by the frost.
- ✂ Reduce the height of Bush Roses to minimise root damage caused by wind rock during the winter months, Climbing Roses should be pruned with the remaining stems being tied to a wall or trellis.
- ✂ Tulip Bulbs should be ordered or purchased for planting next month, remember that the bigger the bulb the bigger the flower, prepared hyacinths and Narcissi 'Paperwhite' should be planted in pots for a Christmas display, mixed colour Hyacinths will not all flower at the same time.
- ✂ Sweet Peas should be sown under glass at the end of the month.
- ✂ Now is a good time to plant Hedges, Shrubs and Trees.
- ✂ Plant Garlic this month just below the soil surface 15cm apart.
- ✂ As the days shorten reduce the watering of houseplants.
